Mortuary Science

“You have brains in your head. You have feet in your shoes. You can steer yourself in any direction you choose.”

-Dr. Seuss

Juanitta Jewel Guerrero grew up in Crystal City, Texas, and graduated from Crystal City High School in 2007. During her high school years, she thought about becoming a mortician but her plans changed. She attended a few institutions of higher education, but never found the right major. When her father, Jesus E. Guerrero, died in September 2018, her passion to become a mortician was reignited. She enrolled in the Spring of 2019 and has managed a 3.86 cumulative GPA.

Juanitta is a mother to two beautiful children, ages six and three, who have been her motivation during the last two years and she hopes to inspire them as they grow. She is thankful for her family, who have been her support system when times were tough. A special thank you to her mother, Diana C. Guerrero, for her love, support, talks, and prayers. Juanitta will continue to learn the industry and hopes one day to own her own mortuary.
