Josue Pelaez

Radio-Television-Broadcasting

“Life moves pretty fast, if you don’t stop and look around once in a while, you could miss it.”

-Ferris Bueller

Josue Pelaez was born in Farmington, Mo. but moved to San Antonio at an early age. After graduating from Judson High School, he attended SAC for the music business program. However, after a field trip to KLRN-TV, he immediately knew what he wanted to do. He switched to the radio-television-broadcasting program and the rest is history.

During high school, he was a drum major for the band, a part of JrocketTV, and in the International Baccalaureate program. All of these added to his success in becoming a leader by providing practical experience. Josue is finishing with an associate in applied science in radio-television-broadcasting and plans to go to Northwest Vista College to earn an additional degree in digital video and cinema production. He aspires to be a professional filmmaker and photographer one day.
