COMMUNICATION DESIGN

“Storms make trees take deeper roots.”

– Dolly Parton

Christina Morse-Lopez (who goes by “Kitty”) is a 44-year-old San Antonio TX native, who has lived here her entire life. After a thriving 15-year career in property management, followed by some major medical setbacks, she realized she needed a different occupation where she could be her own boss, one where she could create a schedule that worked with her new life of constant doctors’ appointments, numerous procedures, and many sick days in between.

In the fall of 2019, she found the communication design program at SAC and decided to try it out, since a graphic designer can not only do freelance work, but also be remote and work from home if needed. She was surprised to find it to be a perfect fit and she has been thriving in the program. She is excited to be graduating this spring and is ready to take on the world of graphic design, adding her own personality and creative flair to everything she does.

Outside of school, Christina is a mother to a newly married 21-year-old daughter and an extremely rambunctious 5-year-old son. She enjoys watching Grey’s Anatomy, Dallas Cowboys football, singing and volunteering at her church, and all things Star Trek.
